Market Commentar¹⁵

Generali Fixed Income Long Duration recorded performance of +0.44% in September 2025. In September 2025, the 5-year Indonesian government bond yield fell from 5.697% to 5.511%, while the 10-year yield remained relatively stable, moving slightly from 6.322% to 6.341%. Indonesia's bond market stayed bullish, with the Indonesia Composite Bond Index (ICBI) rising 0.61% month-on-month, supported by Bank Indonesia's (BI) 25 bps rate cut to 4.75%, aimed at boosting economic growth and liquidity while maintaining inflation and currency stability. Additional liquidity from maturing bonds (Rp 77 trillion in September and Rp 107 trillion in October), along with the Fed's matching rate cut, further boosted emerging market sentiment. These factors enhanced the appeal of Indonesian bonds. With BI's continued easing expected, short-to-medium duration bonds remained attractive, supported by stable inflation and resilient domestic demand despite global and domestic uncertainties.
