Market Commentary

Generali Equity Syariah recorded a performance of -9.76% in June 2026. The Indonesian stock market in June 2026 recorded heavy pressure, with the JCI closing at the 5,643.19 level at the end of the month, correcting 34.74% since the beginning of the year. MSCI's decision to maintain Indonesia's status as an Emerging Market, but with a serious warning regarding transparency and share ownership structures, triggered high volatility and continuous selling pressure from foreign investors, who recorded an accumulated net sell worth Rp71.14 trillion throughout 2026. The financial sector became the main drag on the index due to massive capital outflows, while the materials sector, particularly gold-based commodities, emerged as the sole pocket of resilience amid the pressure thanks to substantial investor accumulation. Volatility was further exacerbated by the weakening of the rupiah to the level of Rp17,908 per US dollar, which pressured interest-rate-sensitive sectors such as technology and property. Nonetheless, the JCI's valuation with a P/E of around 10.15 times, well below the five-year historical average, began to open up selective accumulation opportunities in defensive sectors for medium-to-long-term investors, with potential recovery anticipated heading into the second semester of 2026.
