Market Commentary

Generali Money Market Syariah recorded a performance of 0.24% in October 2026. Indonesia's money market stayed under pressure in October 2026 as external headwinds and rupiah weakness strained liquidity. Bank Indonesia held the BI-Rate at 5.75% at its October 20-21 meeting, but raised the Deposit Facility rate by 25 bps to 5.00% to anchor the rupiah. It also announced one-percentage-point cuts in bank reserve requirements, effective 1 November and 1 December, to inject liquidity. BI also expanded hedging incentives via domestic non-deliverable forwards. The rupiah traded above Rp18,000 per dollar for much of the month, with foreign exchange reserves at US$146.3 billion at end-September.
